HARVARD DEFEATS YALE IN WILD TILT

Crimson Spoils Ellis' Commencement by Taking Ball Game, 4 to 2.

RECORD CROWD PRESENT

About 18,000 See Contest; Losers Make Strong Bid in the Eighth.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD. NEW HAVEN, Conn., June 21.—Nine Harvard men put a crimp in the enthusiasm of 18,000 Yale and Harvard followers this afternoon at Yale Field, the occasion being the annual commencement baseball game between the Crimson and Blue. Harvard won 4 to 2.

The crowd was the biggest that ever saw a baseball game on the old Yale Field.

It was a sorry day for the 6,000 alumni which thronged to the field behind a score of bands, cutting up the usual capers on the march to the field and inside of it.

When the great blare of twenty bands had subsided and the cheer leaders had done their part, two youngsters in the costumes of their daddies' classes tossed out the first ball. The boys were Frank Lennon, Jr., son of F. S. Lennon of the class of 1918, sheff, and Robert Lovell Brown, son of Robert J. Brown of the class of 1918, academic.

The game itself was not the best played in Yale field this year, though there were moments of great excitement, especially in the dizzy eighth, when Al. Orth, umpire behind the plate, reversed his decision which would have retired the Yale side. The bases were packed and Durant, batting for Hickey, was declared out on strikes. Durant plainly did not offer at a high and wide one and trotted to first. Alitch came home from third. Orth, with his peculiar motion, indicated that Durant had struck out, and the Harvard players came in from the field.

Ennis Reverses Orth. Several members of the Yale team crowded around Orth and made it plain that Durant had drawn a perfectly legitimate base on balls. Durant came in and protested and, in the excitement, Ennis agreed to appeal. Ennis, the umpire on base, then agreed with the Yale team that Durant was entitled to his base and that the run scored by Alitch counted.

That Yale run was enough to bring the Ellis within one of a tie, and with the Yale team's known hitting powers, almost anything was likely to happen in the next and last inning. But nothing happened to prove run.

Harvard's first run was a terrific lift over the new fire fence, between deep left and center field, by Lanin. The ball sailed into the crowd at that point and the big left fielder could have. Crocker singled, but was left.

With one out Murphy shot a hot one through the box and stole second. Crane caught it, but Alitch was sent in down to Lincoln. The Harvard third baseman let it get away from him and Murphy scored.

Crimson Wins in Fifth. Harvard won the game in the fifth inning. Hobbs knocked a slow one down to Kerman, who started to first before he picked it up. Lincoln sacrificed and on Emmons' out Hobbs took third. Connelley stole second and Kerman, on second, went to third on a wild pitch by Robinson and scored when Hickey batted Kerman off the bag in fielding Owens' grounder. The decision was close and the crowd thought Kerman had been turned the wrong way after touching first. Kerman had his wits about him and tagged Owens for the third out but the run counted.

After Hobbs had been hit in the ninth as inning Emmons brought him home with a triple to center.

Yale's dizzy eighth was a corker. Crane started by flying to center. Connelley played a smart frame at shortstop all the afternoon. Alitch singled, his third hit, and Kerman poked what looked like an easy one to Lanin. After coming in on the first, Alitch was struck and the ball dropped in front of him. Eddy fled out to Lanin, who this time made a sensational catch.

Hobbs at this point was ordered to pass Shaws. Durant was sent in to bat for Hickey and then came the aforementioned excitement.

Yale died hard in the ninth. Robinson fled out, but Murphy singled, only to be caught tending. Crane batted and Kerman moved him to third on a hit. Eddy wound up the game by flying out to Connelley.

Two Innings Enough for Benton. Two innings finished Rube Benton: Barnes was fair to muddling and had irregular intervals on the plateau and had irregular support; Nehf, who appears at irregular intervals on the plateau and had irregular support; Nehf, who appears at irregular intervals on the plateau and had irregular support.
